The First Reading, taken from the Book of Isaiah, describes the word of God as rain and snow that descend from heaven to water the earth and accomplish their purpose. The Second Reading, from Paul's Letter to the Romans, reflects on present suffering and future glory, presenting all creation as groaning in anticipation of its liberation. The Gospel, drawn from Matthew, offers us the Parable of the Sower, illustrating the different ways in which the word of God is received by the human heart. Taken together, these readings share a common thread: the enduring effectiveness of God's word in bringing about salvation, even in the face of human resistance and obstacles.
